Kelley Jones, Lincoln Memorial University

"The BHC Externship was the most valuable experience of my clinical year. I learned not only what to look for when picking my future practice, but I also developed myself professionally and made lifelong friends. I now feel confident about how to help my future practice grow and how to be a good leader in the practice and the community. The support and awesome learning environment BHC provides goes above and beyond, and now I feel like I understand the business of veterinary medicine, and I'm ready to positively impact the profession!"

Olivia Reed, Colorado State University

"BHC's externship was an invaluable opportunity to learn and apply business skills in a real-world veterinary medicine setting. I really enjoyed getting to know our client and helping her improve her business. The BHC team was very supportive and great to work with as well!"

Minas Mkhitarian, Washington State University

"Learning from the team at Blue Heron Consulting is a career shaping experience. The combination of interactive lectures from people you can look up to and the opportunity to practice what you've learned in a real veterinary practice is simply priceless. I would unreservedly and wholeheartedly recommend the externship to a friend."

Jack Miller, North Carolina State University

"Dr. Kelley Lay recommended this externship to me after I spent 2 hours with her on the phone analyzing my dad's profit and loss statements for his small animal practice. Despite the mundane nature of crunching numbers on P&L sheets, I found it extremely exciting. To some, these numbers look just like what they are: numbers. But in reality, if you look closely enough, these numbers form the framework of a fascinating story—a story that portrays the interworking of an animal hospital. Yet, the true beauty that exists behind the numbers lay not within the story itself, but rather within the potential to rewrite the story yourself. And that is exactly what I think this externship will empower me to achieve. It's one thing to look at a hospital's numbers and determine whether or not it is running well. The real challenge is to look at a hospital that is running poorly and to devise and execute a plan that will make the hospital successful."

Nicole Mundy, Long Island University

"This externship has given me invaluable information on practice ownership, client retention, wellness in veterinary medicine, and assessing the financials of veterinary practices across the country through case studies. A huge thank you to the Ascend Student Program and Blue Heron Consulting for shaping my science brain into the business entrepreneur I hope to be in veterinary medicine!"

Landon Brough, Washington State University

"This experience changed my career trajectory. It gets me excited for what is ahead."

Jessica Martin-Harris, Washington State University

"I learned so much and it was wonderful to learn from someone as passionate and that cares so much for the field. I am excited to continue to learn and stay in touch!"
